Simmons Beginnings

John Simmons, a prominent Boston clothing manufacturer and real estate developer, died in 1870. His will provided for his remaining family - two daughters and two granddaughters - as well as for the founding of an educational institution:

It is my will to found and endow an institution to be called Simmons Female College, for the purpose of teaching medicine, music, drawing, designing, telegraphy, and other branches of art, science, and industry best calculated to enable the scholars to acquire an independent livelihood.

The actual funding for this college did not become available for almost 30 years, however, having been delayed by the Great Fire of 1872. Simmons's real estate holdings had been located primarily in Boston's financial district, and the Great Fire destroyed many of the properties that had been substantial income providers. Rebuilding took many years; it was not until 1899 that sufficient funding was available to establish the college the John Simmons had envisioned

Traditions Through the Years

It all started in 1904...

Although the college may continually be changing, one thing remains the same, Simmons is a community rich in tradition. In the early 1900's the events that Simmons Women held dear to their hearts were the Faculty-Student Baseball Game, Freshman Frolic, Founder's Day, Ghost Walk, Hobo Party, Junior-Freshman Wedding, May Day, Olde English Dinner, Step-Singing, and of course the Student Government Party. Today we look forward to the traditions of Hall Tea, Father-Daughter Weekend, Family Weekend, The Valentine's Ball/Simmons Soiree, Spring Spree Weekend, Woman's Legacy Weekend, and May Day.

There is one tradition that all women from the past One Hundred Classes will remember. It is not every day that the Sophomores run through Evans Hall banging pots and pans to wake up the members of the Senior Class. The May Day Celebration is still valued by the Class of 2005 as highly as it was by the members of the Class of 1912.

WE HOPE THE LIBRARY RENOVATIONS AREN'T 100 YEARS IN THE MAKING!

The Beatley Library renovations will begin this summer, following the destruction of the building in July. The renovations will include study rooms, a new area for the computer workstations, new space for the circulation desk, new entrance, as well as areas for quiet study, and some open areas for not so quiet study. We want the library to be multi-purpose, attractive and comfortable," Daphne Harrington, director of the Libraries and also member of the Library Renovation Advisory Committee, said. "We want the library to better support student's needs." This includes technology needs, books and periodicals, and a more comfortable environment that is better suited for studying and learning, she said. There will be 15 study rooms added throughout the library. Most will fit six people but a few will be large enough for groups that have up to 10. "Some will have media [VCRs, TVs, computers, etc.] and some won't, but all will be wired for the technology," Harrington said. If the room needs to be outfitted with the technology later it will already be wired to do so. "We will phase it in as students need it," she said. For the study rooms that do not have computers, laptops will be available from the new Technology Service Desk (TSD). The TSD is the replacement for the computer lab, L109. The computer lab will no longer be in the basement, but will be located on the second floor, where the reference desk and its collections are now. The computer lab will no longer be a room but out in the open and set up in computer stations on the second floor. "I think it will be more beneficial to the students. They will know where we [the consultants] are and they won't wonder where L109 is," computer consultant Kerline St. Fleur said. "Most students don't even know that the computer lab exists." Half of the reference desk will be moved and will sit across from the elevator and stairs leading into the library. The other half will become the TSD, and that section, when renovated, will contain computer stations that will be under the care of the TSD and student workers, much like L109 and its computer consultants. The circulation desk will be moving to the basement, where the new entrance is located and where the periodicals are now. Also in the basement will be a quiet reading and study area. Other quiet study areas will also be located throughout the building. Current renovations for the new library building are scheduled to start this summer, and will not be completed until December of 2005, so until then there will be an Interim Library. As a result of the construction, Harrington said there will be a few inconveniences including noise, dust, less seating in library, parts of some collections will be moved off-site, and the library will not be accessible through the MCB. Harrington said that the noise and dust are problems but they are part of construction. "We will be making accommodations to make sure student and faculty needs are met during this time." She also said that although some books will be moved off-site they will still be accessible, "The catalog will reflect the books that have been moved off site and students can request to have them brought back." Everything is scheduled to be relocated out of the Beatley building after commencement and then the new library entrance will be open. Once the Beatley building has been closed the library will not be reachable through the MCB. The Interim Library is scheduled to open officially on June 1. The Beatley building will be destroyed in July and the new building will be started in August. In the Interim Library the TSD, reference desk and circulation desk will be moved to where they are going to be in the final renovation.

AND THIS IS WHAT SIMMONS COLLEGE HAS TO LOOK FORWARD TO...

Project Summary 2004

In recognition of the integral role of the Simmons Libraries in the successful implementation of the educational goals and mission of the College, in Jan '03 the Board of Trustees approved a major renovation and expansion for the Libraries. The Library will grow from approximately 32,000 square feet currently to 45,000 square feet, and will be given a new entrance and identity on campus, enhancing its place as a welcoming, supportive, vibrant learning environment. In the renovated library, Simmons will provide 25% more comfortable and usable seating for students, with over 500 seats ranging from private study carrels to soft chairs to team tables. In addition, the new library is designed to support the weight of compact shelving, so over time we will have the capacity to double the size of our print collections. We will also be adding 15 new technology equipped group study rooms of varying sizes, and 5 new event and meeting spaces. The new library will have an Information Commons, which will provide more computers and wireless laptops for students, as well as a student help desk. This Technology Support Desk will be co-located with the existing library service points – the Access Desk (circulation, reserves and interlibrary loan) and the Reference Desk (research assistance and instruction). The new building will improve the layout and functionality of the library and provide a state-of-the-art, technology-equipped facility that will assist Simmons faculty, staff and students in achieving academic excellence.

An event worth waiting for!

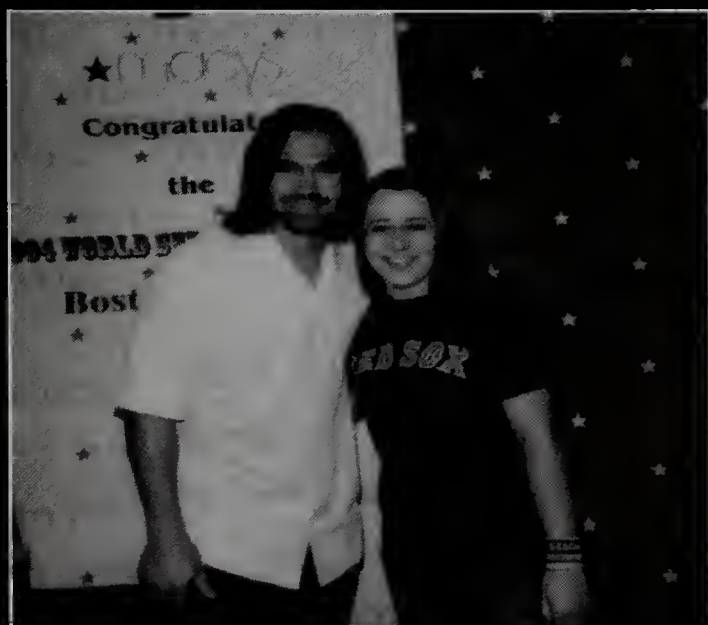

“Swing and a ground ball, stabbed by Foulke. He has it. He underhands to first.

And the Boston Red Sox are the World Champions.

For the first time in 86 years, the Red Sox have won baseball’s World Championship.

Can you believe it?”

- Joe Castiglione

Dear Simmons Students, Colleagues, and Friends:

After much thought and conversation with the Board of Trustees, I have submitted my resignation as president as of June 30, 2006. Sue and I reached our decision after weighing carefully what would be best both for us and for Simmons. We take great satisfaction from our work at Simmons, but we have concluded that the College should welcome its new president well before launching the next major capital campaign. That campaign will be vital for Simmons's future, and we cannot commit to the several years the next campaign's timetable will require. And the campaign's likelihood of success will be greater if there is not a leadership change while it is underway.

Considering that the Board of Trustees hired me in 1995 for just one year, the Board and the Simmons community have fully supported my work as president for a decade since then. The Board's leadership—and friendship—has been outstanding. Any college president in the country would be lucky to have as wonderful a Board of Trustees as ours. Sue and I also have gained many good friends at Simmons, as well as the great satisfaction of working with able colleagues to achieve important goals. We have worked side by side with outstanding faculty and staff colleagues and learned much from them. We have met wonderful students—undergraduate and graduate—and even have seen some return to Simmons as alumnae/i leaders. We have gotten to know talented alumnae/i whose work and lives exemplify the Simmons mission. We have gained so much from the Simmons community.

Graduates who return to Simmons always remark on the tremendous changes on the campus. The new College Center, the renovated Conference Center, six renovated residence halls, the new building at One Palace Road, the new library, and countless improvements to classrooms, offices, and technology across Simmons are what a visitor notices first. But important as these improvements are, they haven't given us the greatest satisfaction.

Rather, we are proud Simmons has regained its pride and confidence. We are proud Simmons has affirmed its commitment to women and has given this commitment new relevance for the future. We are proud that independent accrediting agencies have awarded Simmons's academic programs the highest possible ratings, and bond rating agencies have upgraded Simmons's bonds to investment quality. We are pleased that record numbers of undergraduate and graduate students have enrolled at Simmons. Above all, we are proud that members of the Simmons community realize that good people, working together, can accomplish wondrous things.

By announcing my resignation now, I am confident there will be enough time for an extensive search for the next president, including time for him or her to give adequate notice and move to Boston. In the 18 months until the next president arrives, Sue and I will continue to work hard with the Board and our Simmons colleagues to complete major tasks currently underway, as well as launch new priorities for future success. Of course, we also will assure a smooth transition to the next president. Simmons will continue to have our full commitment and energy.

Under the Board of Trustees' continued strong leadership, and with the vision and ability of the next president and the engaged support of the entire Simmons community, I am confident Simmons's future will be even brighter.

With warm regards and appreciation,

Daniel S. Cheever, Jr.

Dear Members of the Simmons Community:

With sincere regret and deep appreciation, the Simmons Board of Trustees has accepted Dan Cheever's decision to resign in June of 2006 as the College's sixth president.

Dan reminds me that we hired him in 1995 to serve a one-year term! A decade later, under his leadership, Simmons has prospered mightily in virtually every respect: record enrollment growth, strong and stable financial performance, new academic facilities, improved morale, and a record-setting capital campaign. His legacy will endure, and so will our gratitude.

As much as Dan and Sue say they have gained from Simmons, they have returned more to us many times over. Working together, Simmons trustees, president, faculty, staff, students, and alumnae/i have a great record of accomplishment, and the prospect of a very bright future.

The timing of Dan's decision gives the Board of Trustees ample time to launch a careful and thoughtful presidential search. I am pleased to announce that I have appointed a search committee chaired by Jo-Ann Robotti '75, which will immediately begin this important task. I anticipate that the committee will be aided by an executive search firm and will be expanded shortly with a few members of the Simmons community. The Board is committed to an open, inclusive search process, including the opportunity for community members to meet final candidates before the Board makes its decision. We hope to make an appointment by January 2006, allowing a six-month transition period before the new president begins on or about July 1, 2006.

Again, the members of the Board of Trustees join me in thanking Dan and Sue for their service to Simmons. We look forward to continuing our work together over the next 18 months, knowing that their efforts will be, as always, vigorous and productive. We also look forward to many opportunities to express our heartfelt gratitude and to foster our friendship in the years to come.

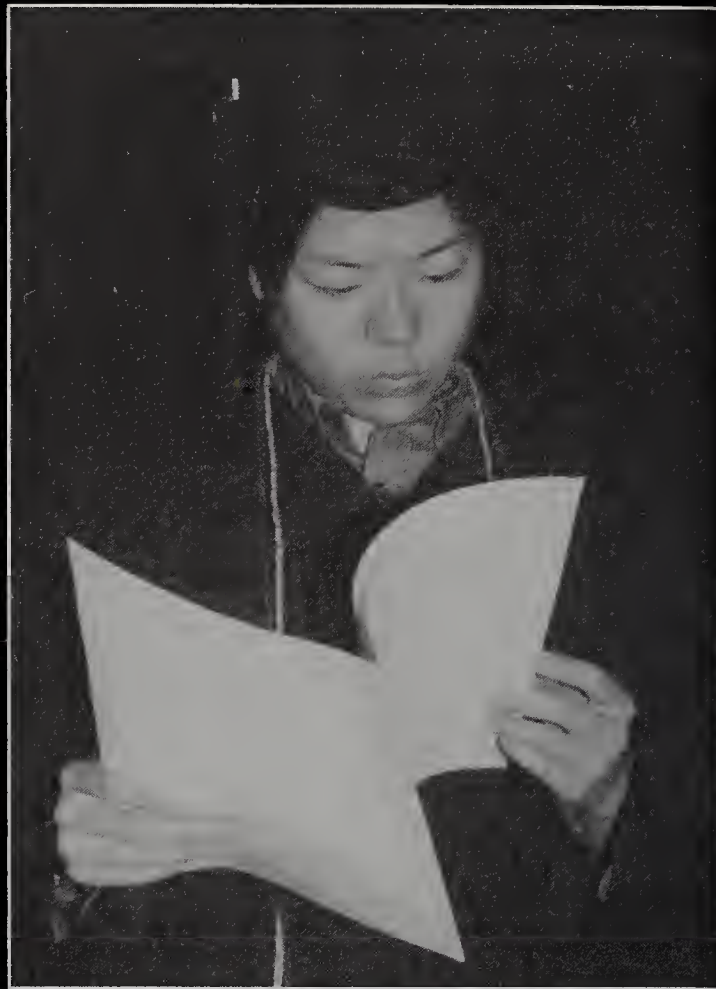

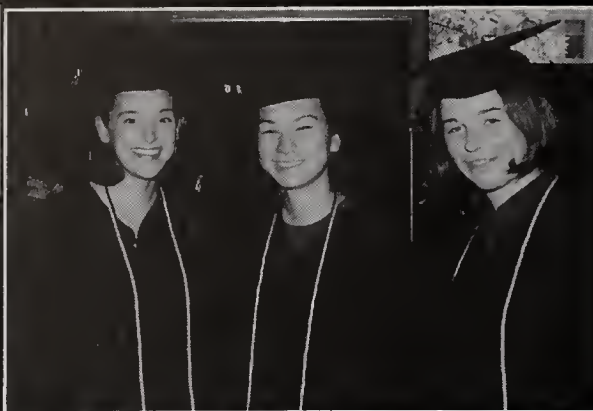

With warm regards,

Lucia Luce Quinn '75,

Chair Simmons Board of Trustees

Everybody Wins Simmons College Athletics

It's about the playing-to-win sweat of serious competition. It's about rejuvenating the soul by getting fit and living well. And it's about a spirit of community, connecting with other simply to have some fun.

The athletics program at Simmons is designed to benefit all students — from the high school All-American stars and solid performers recruited to compete at the NCAA Division III level, to hundreds of casual sports and recreation enthusiasts.

Everyone who attends Simmons is encouraged to participate in athletic activities. The College's philosophy about this is simple: involvement in sports helps students to practice healthy lifestyles and better prepare for life's challenges.

Athletics helps students to learn about the rewards of teamwork, the responsibility of leadership, and the demands of competition, self-discipline, and time management. Athletics helps develop well-rounded individuals amid an atmosphere of academic excellence and achievement.

Crew

With the banks of the Charles River less than a mile from the College, Simmons women have enjoyed the city's rich tradition of competitive rowing since 1978. Experienced rowers compete at the varsity level, while newcomers to the sport can learn the rudiments of rowing on the novice team. The Sharks race during the fall and spring semesters—practicing out of the Riverside boathouse during the warmer months and at the William J. Holmes Sports Center in the winter using Simmons's indoor rowing tanks. Each October the team competes with rowers from around the globe in the Head of the Charles Regatta, the largest single-day regatta in the world, held right here in Boston.

The head crew coach, Nikolay Kurmakov, brings 13 years of rowing experience to the program. He holds rowing honors for first place finishes at the National Championships in Ukraine and the former Soviet Union from 1973-1975. Coach Nikolay Kurmakov competed at the 2001 World Games in Canada. He took first place, winning a gold medal, in the master's division, men's single's event, as well as first place (gold medalist) in the coed four's (four man shell).

Simmons field hockey has established a great field hockey tradition. The program enters its 25th season of sponsorship as a varsity level sport and competes in one of the highest levels in New England. The Sharks are a member of the NCAA Division III and compete in the North Atlantic Conference.

Sharks Field Hockey had a great conference run, capped by receiving its first ever berth to the ECAC post-season tournament. The Sharks finished the year with a 12-6 overall record and 8-3 in the conference; the team advanced to the semi-finals of the North Atlantic Conference (NAC) tournament. The team received their first ever bid to ECAC post season tournament. Junior Tanya Rego led the Sharks in goals (11) and was named the NAC Player of the Year. Senior Captain Annie Hennigan joined Rego on the NAC All-Conference first team.

First-year Head Coach Jen Starek said she was pleased with her players' ability to work and grow as a team. "The ladies gelled throughout the season and improved in every aspect of the game," said Starek, who was voted Top Coach of the Conference by her peers. "We had excellent leadership from our two senior captains and will be a contender in conference play next year".

Simmons College has sponsored soccer since 1989 and in that time has established itself in NCAA Division III and the Great Northeast Athletic Conference as one of the strongest teams in the New England region. The team is the two-time defending conference regular season champion, and the 2004 post-season champion. This year's team represented the conference in the NCAA tournament against Middlebury College.

Simmons Soccer is a very competitive group, with many players coming to the program with club, high school and ODP experience. As with all of the teams at Simmons, though, backgrounds vary and most who are willing will find a spot on our teams.

Under the direction of head coach Dick Dawson, Simmons has finished no worse than third in conference play, and has a 16-2-1 record over the last two years. The team allowed only four goals in conference play in 2004, scoring 53. In that time, the Sharks have had seventeen players selected to All-Conference teams, and had 14 selected to All-Tournament teams including the Rookie and Player of the Year, and MVP of the Tournament in 2004.

The team plays intelligent attacking soccer, with all of its players working together to form a formidable unit. Coach Dawson has worked at virtually every level of soccer in the United States, currently serving as a senior staff coach with the Region I Olympic Development Programs. He has twice been selected as Coach of the Year, travels to numerous camps around the country, and has spoken at conferences on "Coaching Elite Athletes."

It is said that tennis is a sport of individuals, but at Simmons we know how to play as a team and have done so since the team was founded in 1978. On campus, tennis is celebrated for its 61 percent winning record, the highest of any Simmons sport. Each year qualifying to compete at the Great Northeast Athletic Conference Championships. The team practices and competes on six hard courts on the Winsor fields, which are located adjacent to the Simmons residence campus. The 11-week regular season begins in late August.

Coach Elinor Ross comes to Simmons with national and international outstanding playing experience. She held New England tennis ranking for nine years (1984 through 1993), has represented New England at the master's Maccabiah Games national tryouts in 1993 and 1997, and won the bronze medal for doubles at the 1995 Maccabiah Games in Buenos Aires. In addition, she competed in last summer's games in Israel.

Off the court, Coach Ross served at the 1993 Boston Girls Regional Maccabiah Youth Games coach, head girls coach at Dedham Country Day School and Beaver Country Day School, and Tennis Program Coordinator at the Pine Brook Country Club in Weston, Massachusetts.

After a slow start, the Shark volleyball team finished on a high note. Led by sophomore captain Chel'c Pool, who was named to the GNAC All Conference third team, the Sharks made their third consecutive appearance in the GNAC tournament, where they fell to the eventual conference champions, Emmanuel College.

Having made major improvements this year, the program hopes to make waves in the conference next season. The Sharks, who had no seniors on their roster, will be loaded with experience as they gear up for next fall!

The Sharks Volleyball is poised for an explosive year. The team had a great rebuilding year finishing the season 6-16. Look for returning Captain Chel'c Pool to lead the way for the Sharks this year as they look to go further in the conference tournament. Competing in the Great Northeast Athletic Conference, the sharks play against regional powerhouse such as Mt. Holyoke, Emmanuel, and 2004 GNAC Champions Johnson & Wales. The volleyball team has been active at Simmonis since the founding of the athletic program in 1978. The team practices and hosts games in the College's state-of-the-art Holmes Sports Center, which has seating capacity for 700 people.

Today Simmons College has been sponsoring women's varsity basketball for over 15 years as a NCAA Division III member. The resurgence of the program was prompted through the building of a modern athletic facility (Holmes Sports Center). Preseason conditioning starts in mid-September, and regular season play begins in October. The basketball program is taking huge strides by playing a tough conference schedule and an equally challenging non-conference schedule. Some of the perennial powerhouses that we have faced are Emmanuel College, Western New England, and M.I.T.

Simmons belongs to the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA), the Great Northeast Athletic Conference (GNAC), and the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference (ECAC).

Basketball

Simmons built it — an eight lane, 30-meter pool with one- and three-meter maxiflex diving boards, complete with sauna and hot tub — and swimmers and divers from across the country are coming.

The Sharks' most recent success came last season when the team finished their season with a strong showing at The New England Championships, held at Bentley College. The Sharks placed 7th overall out of 20 teams. The team's final season record was 9-4, and was highlighted by a win at the Great Northeast Athletic Conference Championships. Diver Sarah Brown (Medford, MA) qualified for Nationals, marking yet another milestone for the program in 2002. The team starts practice in September and competes in a four-month regular season.

Coach Doug Backlund, a 1984 graduate of Springfield College, begins his sixth year at Simmons. Prior to coming to Simmons, Backlund gained experience as an assistant at Harvard and head coach at American University in Washington, DC. He has coached to Olympians and numerous All-Americans.

2005 Season Preview

The 2004 Simmons Softball team finished their spring season shattering records. The Sharks continued making history with an impressive overall record of 20-15 and placing 6th out of 12 teams in the Great Northeast Athletic Conference. The season was capped off with an exciting run in the GNAC playoff tournament before falling in 8 innings in the quarterfinals to Emerson College 5-4.

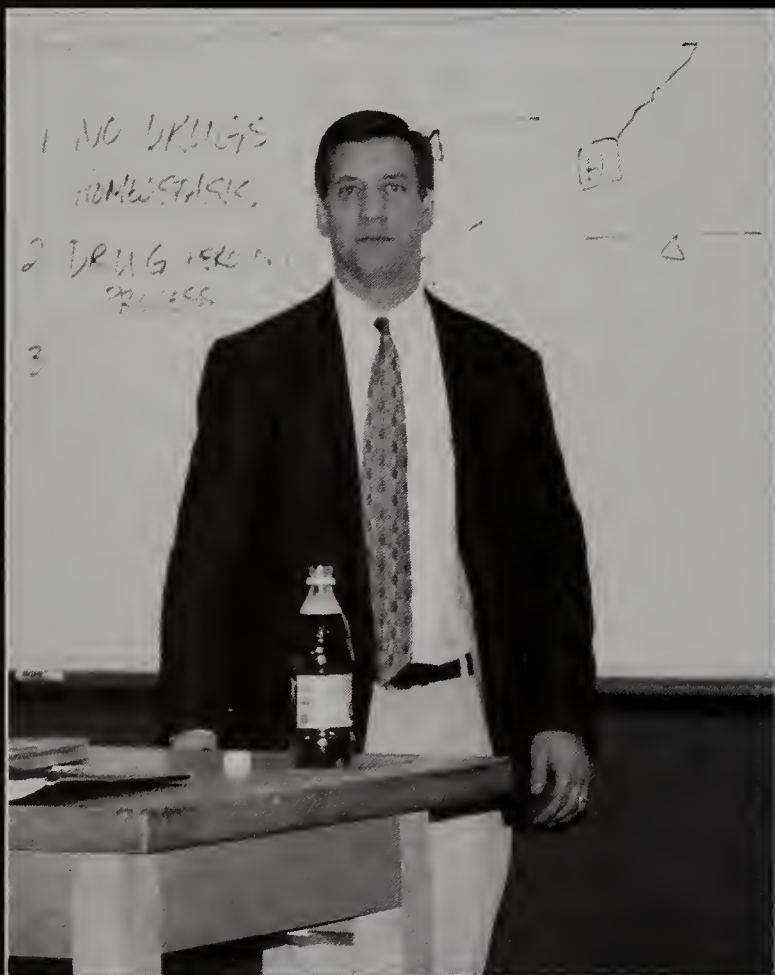

Simmons will turn to the experience and leadership of its talented upperclassmen and call on a core of fresh talent for added depth on defense and consistency at the plate. Lead by GNAC Player of the Year, Annie Hennigan and Senior Co-Captain and GNAC First team player Amy Steinnagel, the sharks are poised to go far in the GNAC this upcoming season and improve on their 15-9 conference record of a year ago.

Students identify the faculty as the College's greatest asset.

More than 109 full-time professors, the majority of whom hold doctoral or highest appropriate degrees from the nation's top schools, bring their enthusiasm and expertise into the classroom. They are published authors, ardent scientists, eminent speakers, working journalists, economists, nurses, physical therapists, business and non-profit consultants, musicians, philosophers, and poets. More than 50% are women.

All are passionate educators.

We Will Always Remember

We were only first years, many of us far from the comforts of home, trying to make it in this new world called Simmons. We sat with our roommates and hallmates, fear in our eyes as we watched the planes hit the Twin Towers in New York City, a place on that day seemed all too close to Boston.

Dean Murphy, President Cheever and other members of the community joined us on the quad for some time to reflect. But really they were making sure everyone was ok. It was at that moment that the Class of 2005 came together as a mini-community. We watched as the older women comforted not only each other, but also us...their little sisters. We were truly members of this community of learners known as Simmons.

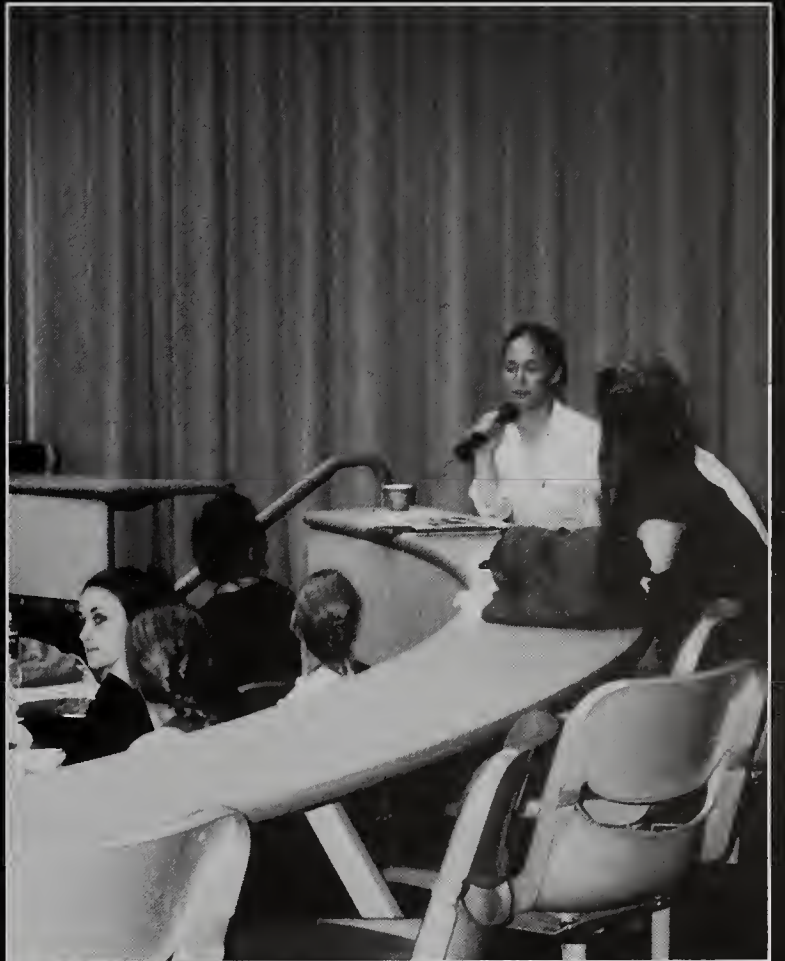

Did we become women
with DISTINCT VOICES
in our DYNAMIC
COMMUNITY??

OREINTATION 2001

Sooner or later we all discover that the important moments in life are not the advertised ones, not the birthdays, the graduations, the weddings, not the great goals achieved. The real milestones are less prepossessing. They come to the door of memory.
